

5 THINGS TO LOOK FOR IN A COWORKING OFFICE

LOCATION

Location is an important consideration, as it can determine the time you spend on transport. Additionally, if you're planning to eat out for lunch, it's best to choose a coworking office close to restaurants and eateries.

AMENITIES

If you're a person who works best in the early mornings, or if you're a person who is more productive at night, you should choose an office space that provide 24/7 access. Find coworking spaces that are flexible and suitable for your work schedule.

ATMOSPHERE

Office atmosphere is an important consideration when choosing which coworking space to settle in, as it can affect your productivity and overall workplace experience. Focus on finding a space that encourages productivity, creativity, and has the potential for meaningful networking.

ACCESSIBILITY

If you're a person who works best in the early mornings, or if you're a person who is more productive at night, you should choose an office space that provide 24/7 access. Find coworking spaces that are flexible and suitable for your work schedule.

WORKPLACE DESIGN

Workplace design is another consideration when choosing a coworking space, as there are a range of desks used, such as hot desks, fixed desks and cabins. Hot desks work on a first come first served basis, allowing you to use any available workstation, whereas fixed desks are reserved desks for a specific tenant to use. Cabins are similar to private offices and only your team can use them.
